LO: To write about the life of a coffee farmer gap?

Hello, my name is Samuel and I am a coffee farmer. I live in Kenya, it is very hot here. I am very smiley and tall. I have a very easy life; but it wasn't always so easy.

Before Fair Trade

Before fair trade, no one ever knew how much they would get for their luxurious coffee beans. At some points I really struggled. There were no schools in the area. You would be very lucky if you went to school. I used to cook on an open fire; it was very dangerous. Some of my plants were dying because of the weather and I didn't know what to do about it! I didn't even have enough money ~~because~~ because the people who brought my coffee didn't pay much money.

After Fair Trade

Now after fair trade, lots of children go to school and get an amazing education and I get a fair price for my coffee too! I also have an oven now. The people who work at fair trade have also been teaching me what to do about the weather. How could it get any better?

What I do every day

Now every day, I go out to my farm and ask my plants how they are feeling and they either reply say "I feel amazing Samuel" or they say "I think I need some more water" (but now they are always feeling amazing!) Once I have asked my plants how they feel, I pick their beans; I hand pick them! At the end of the day I am very proud because I deliver all my coffee to a factory and now I get a decent amount of money.

And all my friends and I want to say is "Thank you!"

Katie this is an amazing piece of writing. You tried hard to use your targets!
