Dear Parents,

Just a quick letter to remind everyone about the importance of making sure that children do not come into school when they are still recovering from any illness. In particular it is important to stress that 48 hours need to elapse since the last time your child was sick before they can return to school. There are no exceptions to this.

This has always been the rule. However, it is even more important that it is adhered to strictly as we have a child in our school with a medical condition which can be potentially life threatening when exposed to sickness bugs. Although in a school we can never eliminate contact with germs from general childhood coughs, cold and sickness, it is important that we minimise the risks as far as possible.

I know this is an issue that the vast majority of you are in complete agreement with and so I hope we can look forward to your full support with this. Thank you for your cooperation.

Yours sincerely,

S. France
Headteacher
